PREFACE

The “Original Version of the Ethiopian Standard Industrial classification” was first published in January 2010 in accordance with Article 30(2) of the Commercial Registration and Business Licensing Proclamation 686/2010 which had 982 categories. After having gone through the necessary revisions it is ready for implementation being referred to as “First Revised Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification (ESIC 1st Revised Edition)”.

The Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification was developed based on the International Standard Industrial Classification and South Africa Standard Industrial Classification and the existing economic realities of the country. It is designed to put in place uniform, accessible and transparent commercial registration and licensing system, to have consolidated statistical data, modern, traceable and fair business practice and regulatory trade system throughout the country. As a result, every business is being treated according to the business licensing categories and codes provided for herein nationally.

By their very nature Standard industrial classifications are designed in ways that make it possible for them to reflect the rapid economic changes both at the global and local levels. Thus because they are characteristically flexible, it is common practice to modify, revise and update SICs within a certain period of time.

It has thus become necessary to revise the existing ESIC based on inputs from various stakeholders, verification bodies, members of the business community and an assessment undertaken by the Ministry of Trade.

As a result, the “First Revised Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification (ESIC 1st Revised Edition)” has been introduced to take effect as of July 2013.

1. International Standard Industrial Classification revision 4 (ISIC rev.4)
2. South Africa Industrial Classification Revision 5 (SIC rev.5)

Historical background

Ever since Ethiopia adopted free market economic policy conditions conducive to a system of trade and business that are upto the times have been put in place. However, because of an understanding of what the free market enterprise was all about which was less clear and the absence of strong and modern regulatory system that is capable of steering the system effectively, the trade sector has largely remained without significant role in terms of its contribution to the country's economic development and the benefits accruing to the society. Fully cognizant of this according to a research the Ministry had undertaken into this since 2007, it was able to identify as some of the problems which include: problems associated with traceability of goods and services throughout the chain of transactions they go through, the undesirable effects of trade registration and licensing system in the market system, absence of uptodate and consolidated information useful for decision making, absence of unique identification for trade registration and licensing and overlapping of responsibilities and absence of coordinated approach among stakeholders. Thus on the basis of the foregoing the Ministry, having undertaken a study that lasted from 20072010 had taken various measures to address the issues. Some of the measures include: institutional reorganization, capacity building undertakings, introduction of new legislation and amendment of the existing ones. Among the legislative measures taken include the promulgation of the Commercial Registration and Business Licensing Proclamation 686/2010.Following the introduction of this piecemeal legislation, the standard industrial classification is one of the directives put in place to give effect to it. Before it was adopted as one of the instruments effecting the legislation, it had drawn on international best practices and other options.

As an example

1. Control Product Classification /CPC/

- CPC is a product classification for goods and services. It is intended for goods and services to combine industry products, trade and price.

2. Standard International Trade Classification /SITC/

- SITC is a classification of goods. It used to classify the export and import of product to enable companies of different countries to identify the products on the besis of product date and country of origin.

- 3. HS code (Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System)
- HS Code Is tariff nomenclature, an internationally standardized system of names and numbers for classifying traded products developed and maintained by the World Customs Organization.

Having in view our local circumstances and taking into account ways to address problems encountered in business regulation as enumerated in the foregoing adopting a standard industrial classification modeled on the South African and the international standard industrial classification has been found to be the most suitable .

A total of about 108 countries already had these standard industrial classifications in place by the time the study mentioned above was being conducted from 2007-2010 which number has gone up to 162 countries since including Ethiopia.

The uses to which the standard industrial classifications can be put are many including as sources of information for both governmental and nongovernmental organizations, for those with research interest on these areas as a basis to analyze business nationally.

A series of changes have occurred since the Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification had been put into effect as of February of 2011 with a view to addressing problems encountered in the regulation of business and based on international best practices. And because of the constant changes that are associated with standard industrial classifications due to economic growth, the Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification has been revised and readied for implementation.

Although the original version of the Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification had many important features worthy of note, it was clear that it had a number of limitations. Thus work on its revision had been launched since July 2011 whereby based on useful inputs from the various bodies every effort has been made to ensure that the revised version had a qualitatively better features.

In addition to inputs from stakeholders, similar documents of other countries and the international standard industrial classification have been consulted with a view to making it up to standard. Further, some of the classifications and structures of the CPC

1. Important considerations taken into account in the revision process:

- 1.1. Each category is easily understandable
- 1.2. The code is consistent in terms of coding, naming, and identification of the verification bodies.
- 1.3. That is of use in the context of the stage of economic development the country finds itself
- 1.4. That the ESIC is compatible and harmonized with ISIC as well as investment legislation and regulations in force.

2. The reasons for the revision

2.1. Newly added codes

- ✓ Requests for inclusion of new codes by stakeholders and the business community
- ✓ Findings by way of diagnostics that there were business activities carried on by business people yet haven't been part of the first edition of the Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification
- ✓ The need for incorporation of newer codes for the newly emerging activities with the economic growth of the country.

2.2. Rearrangement of professional competency certifying bodies bodies

- ✓ Changes introduced in the organizational structures of some of the governmental bodies that no longer reflected what are represented in the codes.
- ✓ Disputes over competence certification mandates amongst some of the governmental institutions
- ✓ Rearrangement of the competency certification different categories based on the responsibilities of the institutions that is provided for low.

2.3. Changes in assigning names and designations

- ✓ The need for changing ambiguously and identified designated codes

2.4. Incorporation of new codes under ‘Not Defined Elsewhere’ (n.e.c) to include those codes not provided for under divisions and main groups

- ✓ The need for incorporation of codes not provided for under major groups and groups

2.5. Codes struck off/ deleted

- ✓ Existence of codes incompatible with the principles of ESIC.
- ✓ existence of ambiguous codes
- ✓ requests for the removal of some of the codes by some government agencies
- ✓ removal of some of the codes because they are subsumed by other codes

2.6. Existence of codes where the proper competence certifying agency has not been designated and hence changes to reflect this.

- ✓ Existence codes to which competence certifying agencies were not assigned
- ✓ Changes in the official designation of some of the institutions due to reorganization and restructuring

2.7. Lack of uniformity in coding and classification

- ✓ Some of the codes are incompatible with the system of classification under the ordinary ESIC

2.8. Existence of codes that have been modified

- ✓ Incompatibility of their designation with that under which they are classified

Introduction

An overview of the Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification

1. Characteristics/features

- As indicated above ESIC incorporates all business activities carried on in the country and hence once incorporated it is mandatory that any business should go through the procedures of the business licensing system, based on the ESIC
- Based on the level of Ethiopia's particular economic development there are a total of 10 sectors. Each sector is sub-divided into Major Divisions, Divisions, Major Groups, Groups, and Sub-group,s coded as in the following example.
 - ✓ Major Division represented by a single digit
 - ✓ Division represented by two digits
 - ✓ Major Group represented by three digits
 - ✓ Group represented by four digits
 - ✓ Subgroup represented by five digits
 - ✓ Licensing Code represented by five digits
- A given business licensing code is determined based on the economic activity concerned and licensing is issued based on the Group or Sub-group categories
- Licensing code may not be less or greater than five digits.
- Each licensing category clearly identified in the code is followed by the appropriate licensing and verification body based on the duties and responsibilities as provided for in legislation establishing them
- It also identifies those agencies that are empowered to both certify competence and issue business licenses all by themselves pursuant to Article 30(1) of Proclamation No.686/2010. Businesses have the duty to get licenses on this basis.

E.g. -Telecommunication Service (7520),

- Each classification ends with a clause “Not Defined Elsewhere”. This is to ensure that it accommodates if there come up codes other than indicated here and are similar in nature. However, this does not mean that all cases of ‘not defined elsewhere’ could be entertained under this category. This could only be done where a given business activity could not be found and that it is of a similar nature. It is necessary to have first a look at the major group and the group for determination of these cases.
- The Revised Edition of the Ethiopian Standard Industrial Classification is developed based on the International Standard Industrial Classification(ISIC Rev.4) and the South African Standard Industrial Classification(SIC Rev.5) hence they will be used as sources of reference.

2. The Importance of ESIC

- To trace businesses and business activities and create conditions for better regulation.
- To better establish the flow and chain of transaction of goods and services.
- To do away with general licensing as opposed to specific licensing
- To ascertain whether a particular business license is being used for legitimate purposes
- To avoid overlapping of responsibilities and to advance a coordinated approach.
- To devise ways in which each governmental agency carries out its responsibilities and help promote its respective sector

3. Objective of ESIC

- Identification of the business licensing codes, competency certifying and business
- license issuing agencies.
- To initiate the preparation of requirements by competency certifying agencies.
- Follow up and supervision of licensed businesses and establish their status
- Collection, analysis and interpretation of statistical data

4. Principles of ESIC

- Each category is mutually exclusive, so one category cannot be used as a reference for the other.
- No two business activities can be issued a license under a single licensing category
- Verification bodies can jointly set requirements for a single category. However,
- they may not prepare separate such requirements each for the same category
- There shall be a minimum of one and a maximum of nine categories under a given group. A person/business man can have as many as up to nine categories in a just a single license. However, each category may require competency certification as appropriate from the appropriate organization. But categories under different groups cannot be entertained under a single business license.

Example 1 Under a group 6121 there are nine categories'(61211, 61212, 61213, 61214, 61215, 61216, 61217, 61217, 61219 which can be treated under one license although they may each require competence certification as appropriate.

Example 2 Under a group 6541 and 6542 there are different categories so they should be treated for different licenses and different competency certificates because 6541 and 6542 are different groups.

The purpose of categories identified as “Not Defined Elsewhere” is confined to cases where there are categories that are similar in nature to a particular group and yet are not adequately defined and provided for under a group

Example: under group ‘6531’ there are 7(seven) categories the one is 65319 which is n.e.c so if someone having a license by this code he/she should have work trades that related to group 6531.

This directive, part of the trade regulatory reform designed to guide the preparation of competency certification requirements, issuance of competency certificates and business licensing and registration system ,is an instrument to coordinate the efforts of the regulatory agencies towards meeting the objectives of the country’s regulatory policies and strategies in the trade sector.

Hence, with a view to fulfilling the objectives thus set it puts to use the instrumentality of in-built rules and procedures which coordinate, guide development efforts ranging from supporting production, and service rendering institutions it would afford a forum whereby different stakeholders and service recipients actively engage in the process.

In general, the document will be highly useful to create a coordinated mechanism where all regulatory bodies and stakeholders can work together in cooperation in order to achieve their common national policy objectives. The document will help in guiding and regulating trade practice through making businesses traceable by availing essential information. These would ultimately lead to maintaining proper and effective regulatory system and underpin socio-economic growth and development. Thus, all stakeholders are expected to be fully involved for its effective implementation.
